The Inside The Valley team was proud to present the 2025 awards at the Orchard Conference Center at CSUN, where we recognized the biggest, best and most notable projects of last year.

We also honored the most successful commercial real estate brokers and broker teams in the Valley area.

Congratulations honorees!

ENTERTAINMENT / STUDIOS EAST END GLENDALE

1223 Glendale Blvd., Los AngelesDeveloper: East End CapitalGeneral Contractor: DBaC Inc.Architect: Bell Design Group

The East End Glendale Studios is an urban campus northeast of Los Angeles. This campus features the new construction of two sound stages adjacent to a surface parking lot, with three stories of office space buffering the private campus from the busy street. The sound stages feature ancillary uses (green rooms, make-up, etc.) and the offices are designed to fit optimal scales of production. The surface parking is partially covered for an outdoor mill with ample room for staging, trucks and trailers.

The overall building design is reinforced with high quality design and detailing. The high-quality, vertical wood louvers and the glazed curtain wall contrast the smooth concrete surfaces to create an overall component of color and variety to maintain human interests. The design of the building is sensitive to the need to create a palette of colors and materials that work well together and complement the building and site design.

HEALTH SCIENCES / MEDICAL ADVENTIST HEALTH

2950 Sycamore Dr., Simi ValleyDeveloper: Adventist HealthGeneral Contractor: Parker Brown Inc.Architect: GP Architecture

Parker Brown completed a 7,000 square foot tenant improvement project for Adventist Health, marking their first major collaboration. The $1.8 million project included 20 exam rooms, private offices, reception, restrooms, a blood draw area, and a lounge. Highlights included custom Pulp Studio glass, wood slat ceilings and image wall coverings. PBI managed a full building power upgrade alongside a concurrent roofing project and elevator upgrades. New rooftop HVAC units were installed for improved efficiency. Despite the complexity, the project was completed within six months. Parker Brown has also worked on several smaller projects for Adventist Health.

This project significantly impacts the Simi Valley community, home to 130,000 residents, by enhancing the only hospital's facilities in the area. The upgraded space supports Adventist Health's ability to provide quality care, improve patient experiences and meet growing health-care demands. As a major local employer, the project also reinforces Adventist's vital role in the community's economy and well-being.

Realizing potential in every dimension.

In 2024, CBRE consistently delivered outcomes that drive business and bottom-line performance for our clients across the L.A. North Region. We congratulate the following Inside the Valley Commercial Real Estate award finalists for setting the bar and being exemplary in the industry.

Deal Value: $9M

GOLD AWARD

Alex Kozakov and Patrick Wade of CBRE successfully facilitated the sale of a prime two-tenant NNN asset in Toluca Lake. Rick Raymundo of Marcus & Millichap was selected to market and sell 11741 Saticoy Street in North Hollywood. This was the first time in 35 years that the 85-unit multifamily property was made available for sale, and Raymundo successfully sourced an all cash buyer to purchase the asset at a price of $11,800,000. According to CoStar COMPS, it was only the third property with at least 85 units to sell in the entire San Fernando Valley within the prior twelve months.

Raymundo focused on a specific buyer with significant liquid capital to deploy for the purchase as well as the renovation of the vacant units.

The successful sale of 11616 Burbank Blvd. is a testament to strategic problem-solving and adaptability in a challenging market environment. This multifamily property, priced below replacement cost and with a recorded tentative tract map allowing for future condo sales, faced significant hurdles, including high interest rates. After two months of slow activity, the seller reduced the asking price by $500,000, increasing the CAP rate to 5.06%, which attracted a local, all-cash buyer with a long-term investment approach.

The Evolving Office Commercial Real Estate Market in the San Fernando Valley

BY DEAN HUNT

THE SAN FERNANDO Valley's office commercial real estate market is undergoing a significant transformation. Over the past six months, we have observed a notable shift in ownership from institutional investors to private capital. This change is reshaping the landscape, particularly in areas like Glendale, where significant transactions over 100,000 square feet have taken place, including the notable transaction of 801 N. Brand by CBRE.

Shift from Institutional Investors to Private Capital

Historically, institutional investors were prominent in the commercial real estate market in the San Fernando Valley.

transactions, particularly in Glendale. One of the most notable transactions was the sale of 801 N. Brand, facilitated by CBRE. This transaction, along with others, highlights the increasing interest of private investors in the region. These transactions are not only significant in size but also in their potential impact on the market. Private capital repositioning these assets are also ready and capable of transacting, with allocation for tenant improvements and incentives.

Market Challenges and Opportunities

While the office market in the San Fernando Valley remains challenged, these recent transactions are creating new opportunities. The new owners, primarily private investors, can offer lower rents to occupiers. This is a strategic move to attract tenants in a market where vacancy rates have been a concern. According to CBRE research, the total vacancy rate in the San Fernando Valley remained stable quarter-over-quarter at 19.4%, but it increased from 18.0% one year prior. In contrast, Greater Los Angeles' overall vacancy rate was 23.9% in Q4 2024. The combination of increased activity and larger tenant demand signals a positive trend towards vacancy absorption, offering hope for the recovery of the office market.

Sublease availability in the San Fernando Valley was reported at 7.0% or 1.6 million square feet in Q4 2024, marking a 40 basis points increase year-over-year. Despite these challenges, there are positive signs. Net absorption totaled negative 40,261 square feet in Q4 2024. Although this figure is in negative territory, it represents an improvement from the amounts reported in the past five consecutive quarters.

Increasing Tenant Activity and Larger Footprints

One of the encouraging trends in the San Fernando Valley office market is the increasing volume of tenants. Compared to 12 months ago, more tenants are looking to take larger footprints. This increase in tenant activity is a positive sign for the market. As absorption improves, it leads to stability in rents and encourages capital investments. These investments, in turn, drive more interest from office occupiers. We've observed this trend in other major office markets, such as New York, San Francisco, and Seattle, where market recovery has been driven by stabilized office attendance policies, the resilience of the legal and financial services sectors, and the growth of companies in emerging tech fields like AI.

New Opportunities for Owner / Occupiers and Investors

The market is also seeing more office products becoming available, providing notable opportunities for owner/occupiers and investors. For instance, properties like 19809 Prairie Street are coming onto the market, offering attractive options for those looking to invest or occupy office space in the region.

Optimism for the San Fernando Valley Office Market

Overall, the San Fernando Valley submarket is performing well compared to other parts of Los Angeles. While challenges remain, the shift in ownership to private capital, significant transactions, and increasing tenant activity are reasons to be optimistic about the future of the Valley office market. The ability of new owners to offer competitive rents and make capital investments in their properties is likely to attract more office occupiers, further stabilizing and potentially revitalizing the market.

However, recent trends indicate a growing presence of private capital. This shift is driven by various factors, including the flexibility and agility that private investors bring to the table. Unlike institutional investors, private capital can often move more quickly and make decisions that are more responsive to market conditions. These owners can also offer competitive rents that align with current market conditions, thanks to the favorable acquisition prices they secured compared to historical rates.

Significant Transactions and Market Activity

In the last six months, the San Fernando Valley has seen several significant
